

Marine Corps Life Cycle Management Command Continues Analysis with Clockwork Solutions

Austin, TX

The Marine Corps division of TACOM Life Cycle Management Command (LCMC) has renewed its contract with Clockwork Solutions to provide the world's most advanced logistics predictive modeling and simulation services.

Clockwork will continue to provide advanced demand forecasting for several platforms selected by the Marine Corps. To date, predictive modeling has been performed for the Light Armored Vehicle (LAV), the LW155 (Light Weight Howitzer), the Medium Tactical Vehicle Replacement (MTVR), and the Assault Amphibious Vehicle (AAV). Additionally, research is being conducted at the Naval Post Graduate School (NPS) to produce the best use of Clockwork's technology for the acquisition and sustainment of the Joint Light Tactical Vehicle (JLTV).

LCMC has led the way in the use of this leading edge technology, and Clockwork looks forward to its continued efforts to support our warfighters with logistical analysis solutions.
